Narayana Kocherlakota, a professor of economics and finance at the University of Rochester, teaches and conducts research in the areas of money and payments, public finance, and monetary policy. He entered Princeton University at age 15 and graduated with a BA in mathematics in 1983. He then received his PhD in Economics from the University of Chicago in 1987 and held appointments at several institutions, including Stanford University, Northwestern University, and the University of Minnesota. Narayana also served as the 12th President and CEO of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis from 2009 until 2015 and joined the Federal Open Market Committee, the monetary policymaking arm of the Federal Reserve System. He was elected a Fellow of the Econometric Society and authored the book "The New Dynamic Public Finance," published by Princeton University Press. In 2012, the Foreign Policy magazine named him one of the top 100 global thinkers, among President Barack Obama, Ben Bernanke, and Elon Musk.
